
Hulu Is Venmo's First-Ever TV Streaming Service Partner

By: Hulu's Subscriber Growth Partnerships Team At Hulu, we want to bring our viewers choice and flexibility, in as many ways as possible. From infusing our product with your favorite features like Night Mode on Web to supporting all the devices that matter most to you, we constantly strive to make it easy for you to stream, any way you want. And that includes how you want to pay for your Hulu subscription. That's why we've partnered with Venmo, the app you love to use to send money, to bring you a new way to pay for your Hulu subscription. We're very excited about this partnership because Hulu is the first-ever TV streaming service to offer Venmo as a payment option for your subscription. Beginning today, if you have a Venmo account, you'll be able to sign up for a new Hulu account and then pay with Venmo in just a few clicks - no need to pull out your credit card and type in your card number. Just use your mobile Web browser to sign up for Hulu and select Venmo as your payment option. From there, your Venmo balance or linked payment method will be used for your monthly recurring subscription. For those of you who are existing Hulu subscribers, you will soon be able to switch your payment preferences to Venmo too. Keep your eyes peeled for more information in the coming months. We hope you enjoy using Venmo as your new payment option! + ? +?= ?